

11 Known Dead after Trains Wrecked Near Philadelphia

BRYN MAWR, Pa., May 18—(P)—Major G. A. McLaughlin, lower Merion Township police superintendent, said 11 persons are known to have been killed in the crash of two famed Pennsylvania railroad trains here today.

Authoritative reports said at least 60 others were injured, eight of them seriously.

Identity of the dead has not been established.

Five bodies were taken from the wreckage of the Pittsburgh-Philadelphia Night Express and the Red Arrow, bound from Detroit to New York. Another was reported to have been located in the debris.

The Red Arrow plowed into the rear of the stopped Night Express at 6:38 A. M. Eastern Standard Time, a short distance west of the station here.

A spokesman for the PRR said the 19-car Philadelphia Night Express had been halted on a signal indicating that something might be dragging from underneath the train.

It was while the crew was trying to detect the drag that the Red Arrow smashed into the rear car—a sleeping car from Cleveland, Ohio—telescoping it and splitting it in half.

This car—the “Poplarvale”—had a sleeping capacity of 24, the spokesman said, but he added it had not been determined how many passengers actually were there.

Two other cars of the Express were derailed.

The engine of the Red Arrow nosed straight into the air, then tumbled onto its side. Behind the locomotive were two unoccupied cars—a train crew dormitory and a baggage car, both of which were derailed.

Had these two cars been occupied, it was speculated, the loss of life likely would have been greater.

The four-track PRR main line in this area, which also pours tens of thousands of suburban dwellers into Philadelphia commerce and industry daily, is elaborately guarded with safety devices. Among them is an automatic block signal system which directs engineers to slow or stop when operating too close to trains on the same tracks.

A PRR official, who said the railroad is investigating but has not yet established the facts, expressed the opinion the Red Arrow was traveling at less than normal speed at the time of the crash.

End of Controls On Wages, Prices Sought by NAM

Dictatorial Ambitions Charged Against Truman Soon after He Calls for Tighter Mobilization

WASHINGTON, May 18—(P)—The National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) today demanded removal of all wage-price controls. It accused President Truman of seeking dictatorial home-front mobilization powers.

A CIO official called for “a stricter price control law.”

A former “Fair Deal” senator, now representing a group of automobile sales finance companies, charged the administration of consumer credit controls is “unfair and unbalanced.”

Meat industry spokesman continued to hammer away at their contention that the government beef price rollback plan will result in diminishing supplies and rationing.

The new wage stabilization board was reported ready to punch some holes in the pay-controls hike.

And the leaders of 57 major civilian industries were called to meet today to discuss with the National Production Authority (NPA) government plans to cut their metal supplies by 30 to 35 percent below pre-Korea levels. The proposed cuts were announced only yesterday.

Differ with President

The announcement was made only a few hours after President Truman appealed anew for stronger controls and defense production programs.

NAM President William H. Rufin said in a statement prepared for the Senate banking committee that the broader economic powers Mr. Truman wants could lead to the destruction of the nation's economic system and would amount to “perhaps the longest single step toward complete government control ever proposed to the American people.”

Congress, the association declared, should let authority to curb prices and wages lapse June 30, when the present law expires. James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, proposed a stiffer price control law that permits dollars-and-cents ceilings, x x x grade labelling and requires maintenance of not only quality goods, but also of low-priced, lines.”

Scott W. Lucas, former Illinois senator and Senate Democratic leader, told the Senate banking committee in a prepared statement that “There is no justification under present conditions for controls on installment sales of automobiles.”

Lucas, who was defeated last year for reelection, told the committee he was testifying “on behalf of the American Finance Corporation, a group comprising some 366 independent automobiles sales finance companies.”

Henry J. Kruse of Seattle, Wash., a director of the Western States Meat Packers Association, told the Senate banking committee yesterday that “authority for price wage and rationing controls should be deleted” from existing laws.

The Wage Stabilization Board was expected to vote today to approve most or all of an 11-cent average hourly wage increase for 220,000 meat packinghouse workers. Packers and unions have agreed on the increase which would push through the wage-control ceiling.

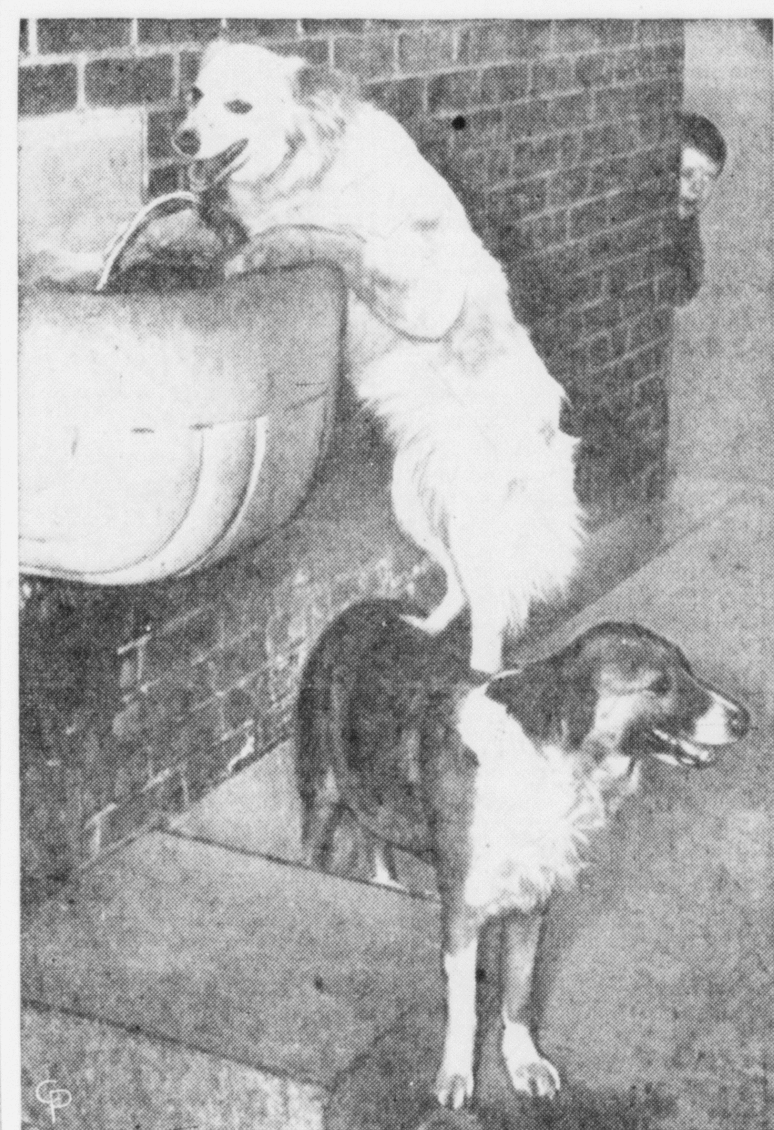

The board also may act soon to approve a four-cent hourly “productivity” pay boost for more than 500,000 CIO Auto Workers Union members. This also would be an exception to the 10 percent pay raise ceiling.

Ohio School Subsidy Is before Legislature

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, May 18—(P)—

The Ohio House voted to give schools an extra $20,000,000 for the next two years. The vote was 127 to 1 with Rep. Ray C. Carpenter (R-Seneca) voting no.

The measure now goes to the Senate which is studying a bill to give schools a $34,000,000 increase.

COLUMBUS, May 18—(P)—

Majority Leader William Saxbe (R-Champaign) predicted today during House debate that Gov. Frank J. Lausche will veto any school bill that the Senate can not pass.

Saxbe opened House debate on a stripped-down version of a school subsidy bill initiated by the Ohio Education Association.

Saxbe said the bill would cost an additional $19,000,000 to $20,000,000 for the next two years compared with $37,500,000 originally sought by the OEA.

He told the House that the Mechem sales tax revision bill, expected to become law without Lausche's signature, would finance the proposed increase for schools. The sales tax bill will produce an additional $20,000,000 to $37,500,000 in the next two years, he estimated.

The majority leader warned against increasing the appropriation proposed in the House bill. A similar Senate measure carries a $34,000,000 increase.

Saxbe put it this way:

“I am confident that if we pass a bill that is inconsistent with our financial future, the governor is going to veto it. And I for one will support his veto.”

Saxbe recalled that Governor Lausche in a previous term vetoed a school bill carrying an appropriation he regarded as too high.

“I don't want to vote for a bill that Lausche will veto and thereby become a hero.”

On the eve of the House vote, the OEA announced it is preparing to exercise its right under the law to carry the subsidy question to the state's voters in next November's election.

The House received from the Senate today a bill to split the state welfare department and create a new department of public assistance. The bill which the Senate approved yesterday 25-8 puts aid for the aged, aid to the blind, aid for dependent children and poor relief administration in the new department and leaves penal and mental hygiene administration in the welfare department.

The Senate also approved and

Jail Faced by Sawyer In Steamship Line Case

WASHINGTON, May 18—(P)—The U. S. Court of Appeals today served notice on Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and nine others that they will be sent to jail for contempt unless they comply with its orders in litigation over control of American President Lines, Ltd.

The court said it would enter an order giving Sawyer and the others five days in which to comply with its decree.

The court said: “If they have not complied as directed in the order (they) must submit themselves x x x for commitment as in civil contempt until they do comply.”

Sawyer and eight other government officials and attorneys earlier had been cited by the court on contempt charges for failure to deliver “effective possession” of 92 percent of the voting stock of American President Lines to R. Stanley Dollar and his associates.

The tenth person involved in the proceedings is George L. Killion, president of the big steamship company. Killion is former treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

Big Shots Involved

In addition to Sawyer, top-ranking government officials involved include Solicitor General Philip B.

Campaign against Noise Here Being Pressed Again by Police

Truck Drivers Chief Violators, Officers Assert

Police Chief Vaiden Long said Friday that the anti-noise ordinance with respect to motor vehicles making excessive noise is to be enforced.

Sometime ago the police started enforcing the ordinance, and as a result, many truck and other drivers who operated vehicles making excessive noises were rounded up and either forfeited bonds or were fined.

The worst offenders were some of the big truck drivers whose vehicles roared through the city with no attempt made to curtail the roar of unmuffled motors.

Many of the offending truck drivers were found to be operating vehicles which were without mufflers or with mufflers inadequate to be effective.

Fore some time the offending noise has been on the increase, with resultant complaints on the part of the public.

Chief Long said that he had instructed all members of the police force to arrest drivers whose vehicles are making excessive noise. Numerous arrests are anticipated as the enforcement gets underway.

Complaints have been increasing. They come from along most of the main arteries through the city.

Trucks with roaring motors have been pouring through Court Street in large numbers, and others have been using other main thoroughfares in the same manner, to the great annoyance of citizens generally.

The anti-noise ordinance provides that all motor vehicles shall be properly muffled, and that other unnecessary noise makers be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both.

Truman and MacArthur In Heated Word Battle

WASHINGTON, May 18—(P)—President Truman's statement he had considered dismissing Gen. Douglas MacArthur off and on for a year “astonished” the deposed general and stirred critics of the administration to new wrath today.

Senator Hickenlooper, Iowa Republican dissenter on official Far East policy charged Mr. Truman had “deceived the people” with previous declaration of support for MacArthur.

MacArthur, in a statement issued in New York, said his astonishment at Mr. Truman's remarks bordered on incredulity. He added: “It is difficult to reconcile this with my appointment by him as commander-in-chief of the United Nations command” in Korea. That was last June.

Mr. Truman also told his news conference yesterday the Republicans are trying to overthrow the foreign policy of the United States.

This brought a retort from Senator Brewster (R-Me.), a foreign relations committee member. He told a reported “we can't overthrow it when we don't know what it is.”

The president said he decided he needed a new general in the Far East when MacArthur called on the Chinese Communists in Korea on March 24 to negotiate a truce, in advance of a proposed presidential peace proposal.

MacArthur's Reply

MacArthur replied to this, too, in the statement issued by his chief aide, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney.

The deposed general said he had twice previously tried to obtain a cease-fire agreement, both times “without conferring with higher authority and without the slightest exception being taken thereto.”

As for the March 24 offer to the Chinese Red commander, MacArthur said:

“Such action on my part could only be regarded as supplementary to and in full support of any political move toward peace unless an agreement was in contemplation of the enemy's own terms.”

In an expansive mood at his news conference, the president also said that:

1. Secretary of State Acheson cautioned at an April 6 White House conference against MacArthur's removal on grounds it would stir up a political fuss. And, it did, he was right, the president added with a grin.

2. He is happy the Senate armed forces and foreign relations committees upheld yesterday a ruling that Gen. Omar Bradley did not have to divulge what was said by whom at the April 6 White House meeting.

Hearing Postponed

That decision was taken by the committees by 18 to 8 vote. They then postponed until Monday the reopening of hearings in to MacArthur's ouster, calling off a session planned for today.

Bradley argued that was a confidential matter between the president and his advisers. Mr. Truman agreed.

The president's disclosure of Acheson's part in that conference

Commie Offense Rolling in Full Fury, Is Belief

Slaughter Terrific But They Come On Over Piles of Dead

By OLEN CLEMENTS TOKYO, May 18—(P)—A tide of Communist troops broke through American lines in two sectors of the Korean front today and threatened to engulf one U. S. division.

After three days of slowly gathering momentum, the big new Red offensive was rolling in full fury. It had gained as much as 20 miles.

One U. S. division was “in great trouble,” AP Correspondent Nate Polowetzky reported from U. S. eighth army headquarters.

Chinese pouring through a break in two South Korean divisions were believed to be on three sides of the U. S. division. The South Korean break, south of Inje on the east-central front, had exposed both flanks of the American force.

Waves of Chinese infantrymen overran one U. S. unit on the central front and penetrated another. Attacking Reds scrambled over their own dead to reach the U. S. lines.

Communist infantrymen were cut down by the thousands.

But the sheer weight of their numbers forced general UN withdrawals along the entire eastern sector and some withdrawals across the central front. In the west, the Allied line north of Seoul held firm.

Failure Predicted

Utterly heedless of losses, the Reds attacked in a great offensive which Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, UN ground commander, said was doomed to failure.

Van Fleet made his confident statement after the UN high command announced the Reds had 1,141,000 troops in Korea or quickly available in Manchuria.

Their heaviest weight was thrown against the east-central sector. Up to midnight Thursday they had lost 9,000 men there, AP Correspondent William C. Barnard reported.

“Their losses after midnight were astounding,” he said.

“They hurled an amazing storm of men against a heavily defended position southeast of Chunchon. They ran into Allied minefields and through Geysering explosions. They kept coming over the bodies of their own dead. Allied artillery rained death in their midst.

“They kept coming and then they hit the barbed wire entanglements and fixed American machineguns opened up with deadly fire. It cut them down by the hundreds, stopping the attack cold at the very mouth of the Allied guns.”

Through the night Allied bombers and fighters bombed and strafed by the light of flares. Massed artillery fired steadily into swarming Reds.

In one spot east of Chunchon shells burst in a mass of 8,000 Chinese.

This was on the edge of the big Red breakthrough.

An estimated two Chinese divisions poured through the gap in South Korean lines and fanned out south, southwest and southeast of Inje.

Pressure on Flanks

They were reported applying heavy pressure on American flanks.

Communists streamed down the road toward Hongchon, highway hub and American base on the central front.

Americans were engaged in heavy fighting around Hangye. The town is 13 miles south of the 38th Parallel, 20 air miles south of Inje and 10 miles northeast of Hongchon.

This appeared to be the greatest depth of Red penetration.

While Americans fought to stem the Red tide, South Koreans were reported reaching their new defense lines.

Sixth Graders Hold Show Here

Varied Hobbies Put On Display at School

The sixth grade class at East-side School went "all out" for their hobby show, which was held all day Friday (today) in their classroom.

Many different objects, from airplane models to post cards, were displayed by the members of the class around their room.

Probably one of the most interesting objects was a postcard from Russia. It was part of the collection of Sarah Core. She also had dolls and fancy napkins displayed.

Genevieve Mann had a display of different colored sea shells, she has collected as her hobby.

Patty Cutlip showed a number of her dolls, one of which came from Spain. She also had some pretty napkins and postcards from all over the United States.

Sandy Rose exhibited her collection of dolls, which depicted characters from story books. She too, had a large number of sea shells of all types.

Dale Maddux showed his collection of miniature figurines made of glass and china.

Sandra Cook has made a hobby of collecting different types of brooches and lapel pins besides her collection of postcards and napkins.

A number of airplane models were on display as part of Marvin Arnold's hobby. He also had a scrapbook of nature and sports pictures.

Earl David Hopkins has made a hobby of collecting small plastic figurines and shells, which he put on display in the school room.

All kinds of small knick knacks were collected by Sara Ann Terhune. She exhibited them along with her collection of dolls.

Probably the most unique display in the room was a collection of fountain and ball point pens collected by Robert Speakman. He also had 2,000 different colored marbles.

Mary Pavey saved her Sunday School pictures and made them into a scrapbook, which she displayed along with her dolls.

Judy Edmonson had two dolls from Scotland, one from France and one from Ireland which she exhibited as part of the hobby show.

The sixth grade teacher and principal of Eastside, Mrs. Ruth Hopkins, brought her hobby collection of salt and pepper shakers to school for the show. She also had a collection of bells from all parts of the world on display.

During the afternoon the mothers and fathers were invited to see the children's hobby collections.

Telegrams Flood

Normal working conditions were restored in Cincinnati, Boston and Buffalo, N. Y., following back-to-work orders issued by Adolph Brungs, national president of the AFL Commercial Telegraphers Union, Western Union division.

The "spontaneous" work stoppages began Wednesday in Philadelphia and Cincinnati. They spread rapidly to the other five centers and threatened to affect workers in Chicago and a number of other cities.

In Philadelphia, a CTU spokesman said the walkout "was still in force" despite Brungs' order. The spokesman said union members would not return to work until the company "gives assurance that violations will not be repeated and the word 'temporary' deleted from the offered settlement."

In Detroit, a union official said employees there would remain off the job at least until after a mass membership meeting today (Friday).

In the San Francisco Bay area, 900 Western Union employees voted at a mass meeting Thursday night to remain away from work pending ing the outcome of another balloting session today.

Western Union officials termed the walkout illegal, and denied violating the company's contract with the CTU. The company said it would postpone its supervisory training program "to avoid any further interference with important defense traffic and the messages of the public."

Labor union officials insisted their contract bars "excluded" supervisory employees from performing duties covered by the contract.

Brungs charged management started the training program "in anticipation of a possible national strike on or about July 1."

The union head said some 35,000 Western Union employees had voted ten-to-one to strike unless the company agrees to negotiate a union demand for a flat 25 cents an hour wage boost.

Brungs said Western Union employees now receive an average of about $1.27 hourly under the present contract which expires July 1.

On the other hand, Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate foreign relations committee told a reporter the president's statements ought to set at rest reports he was "influenced by somebody else" in his decision to sack MacArthur.

Hickenlooper said it appears the president "misled the public for a long time by saying he backed up MacArthur while, as he now admits, he had it in mind to replace him."

"If his mind was made up in advance, why was it necessary to go through the monkey business of all those conferences?" The senator asked. "This sounds like a fantastic performance."

The president said he went the way to Wake Island last October to see MacArthur and that he

Other committee actions:

The Senate judiciary committee recommended passage of a House-approved bill to permit padlocking for one year of gambling establishments as common nuisances.

The Senate taxation committee killed a bill which would have banned the levying of city income taxes.

The government contended, however, the stock had been surrendered outright to the government.

The Court of Appeals, in its most recent decision, said the Dollar interests were entitled to effective possession of the stock.

The stock certificates actually were turned over to R. Stanley Dollar and associates in March, but they were not allowed to vote them at the company's annual meeting and they were not transferred on the company's books.

The circuit court held that was not "effective possession" as it had ordered.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, May 18—(P)—When General MacArthur was telling the senators how he'd try to end the Korean war, he said this about the Truman administration's way of doing the same job: "The inertia that exists! There is no policy -- there is nothing, I tell you, no plan, or anything."

Despite MacArthur's opinion, the Truman administration does have a policy for fighting the Korea war. And the president, Secretary of Defense Marshall and others have outlined it.

MacArthur offered a four-point plan: bomb China's bases in Manchuria; put on economic and naval blockade on China; and use Chiang Kai Shek's troops, now on Formosa, against the Chinese Communists.

This is the Truman plan: keep on conflicting with losses on the Chinese Communists in Korea 'till they quit; but limit the war to Korea and don't do anything which might bring Russia into it on the side of China.

In support of his criticism that this is no plan at all, MacArthur says the Truman policy can go on endlessly, resulting in more and more American casualties as time goes on.

What makes the Truman advisers think their policy can win at all? Marshall explained that to Senate committees:

Although the manpower of the 450,000,000 Chinese is virtually inexhaustible, lack of equipment and weapons limits their ability to train and turn out fighting forces.

Further, he says, the Chinese have suffered tremendous casualties, vastly more than the UN forces whose number is smaller but whose destructive ability is far greater. The Communist Chinese will have to quit in Korea if the UN forces keep destroying their best armies at present rates.

What makes MacArthur think his plan will quicken the war's end? And when does MacArthur think he can end the war with his plan? He didn't make a prophecy, either.

MacArthur says he thinks it's absurd to fight a war without using all your strength, fighting only a limited war.

But Marshall says he doubts MacArthur's policy can shorten the war, in fact, he said, it would lengthen it and cost far more casualties, if this war widens into a world war, with Russia coming in.

And last January President Truman, in a message to MacArthur, told him that steps which might "in themselves be justified" to help end the Korean fighting would be wrong if they touched off World War III.

How many more U. S. men would MacArthur throw into action? He said he didn't think very many additional ground troops would be needed but more air and naval strength would be.

Now take a look at four points in MacArthur's plan:

1. Bomb the Chinese bases in Manchuria, from which they send troops and supplies to their fighters in Korea. Marshall says that already would have been done if it weren't for the danger Russia might go to China's assistance.

2. Putting an economic blockade on China. The U. S. has been doing this but our Allies have been sending needed materials to the Chinese Communists.

3. Putting a naval blockade around China to be sure nothing gets in. Marshall says this would leak like a sieve. Would we try to stop Russian vessels from entering Chinese ports? Would that start World War III right there?

4. Arm and equip Chiang's troops on Formosa for use against the Chinese Communists. MacArthur says the very threat of

Newspapers Top Other Mediums

1950 Gains Are Shown in All Lines

National advertisers' investment in newspaper space once more topped all records in 1950 with a score a hair's-breadth below the half-billion-dollar mark -- exceeding by millions the largest amount ever put into any single advertising medium by national advertisers -- it is revealed by Irwin Maier, publisher of the Milwaukee Journal and chairman of the Board of the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The new-high mark -- fifth all-time high in newspaper national advertising scored in five years--represented a dollar gain of 12.1 percent over 1949.

It was nearly double the long-standing highmark of $260,000,000 in national advertisers' investments scored by daily newspapers in 1929 -- and compared almost as favorably with the $270,000,000 score of postwar 1946, which was hailed by the Bureau of Advertising in its 1947 annual report as a great newspaper victory but at the same time merely "the first fruits of a harvest that stands ripe for still more productive reaping."

The 1950 gains, the bureau discloses, went through virtually every classification of national newspaper advertising, ranging from a 9.7 percent gain in national grocery advertising to a 39 percent gain in cosmetics advertising, and a 78.4 percent gain in radio and television advertising in newspapers.

"Again, as last year," Chairman Maier declared "newspapers have clearly established their dominance among national advertising media."

"Far more important, however, the near-half-billion-dollar figure is the strongest vote of confidence national advertisers have ever paid to a single medium's ability to cut their distribution doing this would have a good effect.

Armed Forces Day Observance Set By Guardsmen Here

Saturday visitors in the downtown section of Washington C. H. will have an opportunity to see some of the latest weapons, most of which are used in Korea.

In observation of Armed Forces Day, Company M, Ohio National Guard, will have on display an .81 mm mortar, recoilless rifle, rocket launchers, light and heavy machine guns, small arms and vehicles.

There will be guardsmen on duty to explain the weapons to the general public.

One of the highlights of the Armed Forces Day here will be a retreat, which will be held by the costs and make their selling more efficient and profitable."

Maier, however, cautioned newspapers against letting success breed complacency, urging them to "sell harder than ever" and to "do everything in our power to further increase the productive value of newspaper advertising to the advertisers who use it."

Speeding drivers involved in 1 out of 3 fatal traffic accidents

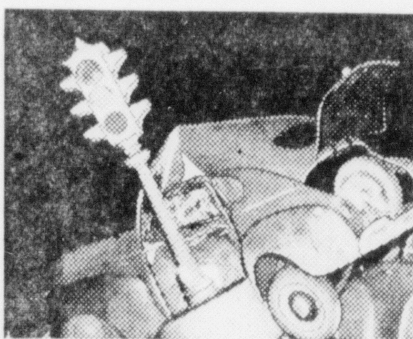

Watch out—the time you save by speeding may be spent in the cemetery. According to official traffic records, speed is the most frequently reported violation in fatal traffic accidents.

So exercise your foot someplace else than on the accelerator. Remember that a speeding car is harder to handle, takes longer to stop, does more damage. Make it a point to drive at safe speed . . . always.

When driving conditions are bad, safe speed is often much lower than the legal, posted limit. Slow down when weather or visibility is poor. It may take a little longer—but chances are you'll live a lot longer.

Lights out for another speed merchant. Somebody tried to outguess a traffic light and now somebody is dead. Don't let this happen to you. Slow down at intersections. When you step on the gas instead of the brakes, it may be your last step.

Too late for the doctor. This driver couldn't wait. He speeded past another car on a hill, and look what happened! Remember this and be extra careful. Don't pass on hills or curves. Don't weave in and out of traffic. Always drive at a safe speed.

Dead serious. You're asking for trouble when you can't take time to heed road signs. These signs are put up for your protection. So learn what they mean and follow them. Too many of the drivers who don't "believe in signs" end up in the hospital.

Consumers and Cattlemen Showing Concern

There are hundreds of families which are consumers around here, as well as in the congested cities, affected by worry and doubt as to what to think of the meat situation.

This week a trip out to the various stockyards in Washington C. H., produced very little new information. As one stock shipper said, "Nobody knows what is coming off and nobody knows how much to plan ahead."

Fayette County is not a huge shipping center, as compared to many large cities, but in this city there is a large number of beef cattle, bought, sold and shipped. The shipping yards here are far ahead of most cities this size in rural areas, in the number of cattle handled.

The farmers around here keep up pretty well on stock-raising prices and shipping conditions. In talking with some of them and also with some of the managers of shipping yards there is noted a questioning attitude and a definite dissatisfaction with government methods of control.

One yard manager here this week said that not only the cattle shippers but the hog shippers are showing concern. The hog dealers fear that the government will soon start on them too.

A noticeable factor in this community was pointed out by one man who said that there had been an unusual number of beef cows sold here. This is taken to mean that there will be less calves.

Whether to sell, or hold back cattle and gamble on the future, is the proposition that is bothering farmers in this locality. Many are waiting to see what others are planning to do.

Whether the government will slap on rationing this fall, is another question that not only stock raisers, but also consumers, are debating.

One thing seems certain, there has been a definite let-down among cattle shippers in the Midwest. If the present price rollback holds and continues through August, with possible rationing and stricter government supervision of all stock shipments and slaughter, perhaps also active black markets, there are many who feel real trouble will be in the air.

One dealer at shipping yards here, said this week that nearly all the farmers and others who had been in to talk over the situation agreed on one thing with emphasis "let the OPS (Office of Price Stabilization) die". They are hoping Congress will do that in June.

To a large extent beef in this country is produced by starting cattle on the range. The steer is brought up to a medium weight by grass. Then the feeder buys him from the rancher and adds several hundred pounds by the use of grain and other concentrated feed. That is the finished product. Some 85 percent of all inspected beef comes to the consumer by the feedlot route.

Since the OPS order rolling back the price of beef, a lot of feeders announce they are quitting, at least until October when the rollback, is supposed to have its full effect. They say they aren't going to pay 34 cents per pound for feed animals and then take several cents less when they market the fattened animals. They would go broke that way.

So America, in the next few months, faces a diet of both less beef and less tasty beef. Grassfed animals don't make the best beef. Since they lack the several hundred pounds which feedlot operators put on them, there will be less beef.

There is no price ceiling on veal as yet and the likelihood is many livestock men will market their calves at a high price. Veal, too, is not very good beef and the animal is marketed at the most uneconomic stage.

These are troubles not only for the livestock man but for the consumer who wants beef and won't get a good grade. Unless the OPS works it out far better than the OPA did, the country will wind up with no beef except that from uninspected black markets.

What about Bearing Human Pain?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, —(AP)— If you stub your toe, does it hurt you less than it does a Russian if he stubs his toe?

Does a gink in Minsk suffer less from an appendectomy in Pinsk than a Chicago Irishman does in New York? Can he bear up under it better?

These and other questions concerning the phenomena in the world of hurt have been raised by a London specialist in squirming nerves. He raised them inadvertently in an address to the California medical association.

Dr. McDonald Critchley told of seeing major operations performed in Russia without the use of any anesthesia, including hypnosis. A Russian surgeon told him this was a common practice and added:

"We Russians are better able to stand pain than other races." Commenting on this stoicism under the knife, Dr. Critchley remarked:

"It's possible their part-Oriental blood had something to do with the phenomenon."

Now pinch your arms and legs and see if either of these statements make sense to you. Do they? They don't to me. I am just a poor man's philosopher who gathers what he knows about life as he goes through life.

But I have seen nothing in this world that would convince me that Russians can stand pain better than Bavarians or Armenians or Shetland ponies. Nor has travel in 54 countries given me any evidence, possibly, that any race with "part-Oriental blood" has any more basic fortitude under stress than a race with part-occidental blood, meaning you and me.

The whole theory smacks of propaganda rather than science, far as I can tell. Propaganda on the part of the Russians, not by the British doctor.

I know a little bit about propaganda, a little bit about science. But I know a big bit about pain. It's an old sight in many climates and at many levels -- spiritual pain, mental pain, physical pain.

My experience has been that pain of any kind hurts all human flesh equally so far as race, color or creed are concerned. Is a pimple on a Chinese nose less tender than a pimple on a Brazilian nose?

Is a Siberian mother hurt less by the death of her baby than a Nebraska mother is hurt by the loss of her child?

Pain doesn't vary with the color of a race or the complexion of a face. But it does vary in degree with the individual and the depth of his feeling.

A more pertinent thing about pain: The smarter you are--if you are normal--the more you try to avoid it. You don't seek it.

One hundred and fifty years ago American men and women stoically endured operations without anesthesia because anesthetics hadn't been discovered or put in common use. Why didn't the Russians the British doctor mentioned use sedatives? Didn't they have any? Probably not.

Early in the Korean campaign many South Korean wounded soldiers had to be operated on at a time when no opiates were available. Customarily four other soldiers were assigned to pin them by force to the table during the operations. Yet the Koreans are recognized as the most durable people in the Orient. If they were only "part-Oriental" like the Russians, would they have borne the pain better? Or felt it less?

The truth is that pain, no matter its degree, sometimes is and sometimes isn't controlled in terms of outward expression. Some people will break into tears if a sparrow falls two blocks away and others will break up dry-eyed even if an elephant collapses on them. Does it make any real difference if they keep on going?

Some children cry at the sight of a switch; some are so stubborn that you could whip them to death and they'd never make a cry. But it's personal or cultural or traditional or individually necessary--not racial.

Doctor, it just ain't so that a Russian can take it on the chin better than an American or a zulu or a gork or a gork. It's always the guy--not the group, the man not the mass.

Marshall's Judgement on Record

By George Sokolsky

It would seem that the gist of General George Marshall's argument before the senatorial committee is that General Douglas MacArthur's judgment is not to be relied upon, that he, General Marshall, possesses a superior judgment.

Comparisons of this nature are difficult to make. Yet the record does disclose:

1. General George Marshall was present at Yalta, as chief of staff. It was at that conference that Russia exacted from Roosevelt an agreement by which Russia got a free hand in Turkestan, Mongolia, Manchuria, with leeway to conquer China by Chinese Communists, plus half of Korea, on condition that Russia would enter the Far Eastern war, 90 days after Germany was defeated.

Obviously, the defeat of Germany would quickly result in the defeat of Japan. Here is the timetable:

Germany defeated May 7, 1945.
Russia enters the war against Japan August 8, 1945.
Japan defeated August 14, 1945.

For a week of war, the United States gave China to Russia at Yalta. No one has ever heard General George Marshall protest that the price we paid was too high. Nor has Marshall ever declared that Roosevelt did not act on his counsel or that he ever opposed Roosevelt's decisions.

General MacArthur, our consul in Asia, was not invited to Yalta. The expert on Far Eastern affairs was Alger Hiss.

2. Look at Robert E. Sherwood's "Roosevelt and Hopkins", pages 303-304. There you will find a letter to Roosevelt from Henry Stimson, shortly after Germany invaded Russia. From this letter it is apparent that Marshall told Stimson:

"Germany will be thoroughly occupied in beating Russia for a minimum of one month and a possible maximum of three months."

That was 30 hours after the invasion which started June 22, 1941. Germany was so occupied until May 7, 1945. Further, Stimson wrote Roosevelt:

"They (chiefs of staff) were unanimously of the belief that this precious and unforeseen period of respite should be used to push with the utmost vigor our movements in the Atlantic theater of operations. They were unanimously of the feeling such pressure on our part was the right way to help Britain, to discourage Germany, and to strengthen our position of defense against our most imminent danger.

"As you know, Marshall and I have been troubled by the fear lest we be prematurely dragged into two major operations in the Atlantic, one in the northeast and the other in Brazil, with an insufficient demonstrated superiority of American seapower to hold politics steady in South America. By getting into this war with Russia Germany has much relieved our anxiety, provided we act promptly and get the initial dangers over before Germany gets her legs disentangled from the Russian mire."

First, of all, the United States was then not at war. Secondly, every estimate of timing which Marshall made for Stimson has turned out to be wrong by the course of events. It is a letter too long to publish here, but I recommend it to anyone who wishes to make an appraisal of General Marshall's judgment in connection with the European war.

3. It was General George Marshall who insisted that Chiang Kai-Shek withdraw from Manchuria. That opened the way for the conquest of China by the

Diet and Health Choice of Deodorant Considered Important

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Everybody—that is every normal person—perspires. Some may perspire less than others, but there is no such thing as a sweat-free human being. For this reason, virtually all of us require anti-perspirants or deodorants at least from time to time, and many should use them every day.

As it comes from the body, sweat has no offensive odor. This fine state of affairs is soon changed, however, by the bacteria which are always present on the skin. They act on the perspiration to produce the so-called perspiration odors.

Germ on Skin

It is true that regular bathing gets rid of many of the germs on the skin for the time being and also washes away the perspiration, but the excretion of perspiration is a continuous process, and germs soon collect on the skin again.

The unpleasant odors of perspiration cannot be disguised very well, at least for very long, with cologne, toilet water, or powders, as they only temporarily mask the odors.

Allergic to Chemicals

Most of the deodorants available for use on the skin are safe. However, it must be borne in mind that there are some persons who are allergic or oversensitive to chemicals of one type or another and, should they use a deodorant which contains such a chemical, irritation of the skin may occur. Deodorants in the form of liquids, powders, or creams all seem to be equally effective. Deodorants should not be confused with substances which are utilized to cut down the amount of perspiration. It is not advisable to apply a deodorant under the arms immediately after the hair has been shaved, since this may lead to irritation of the skin.

Most of the anti-perspirants which are available seem to have been sufficiently tested to prove that they are safe for most of us. It is always a good plan to discuss with your physician the matter of which deodorant or anti-perspirant to use, if the least irritation results because of their use.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
K. A. S.: I would like to know if nervousness can cause one's menstruation to stop? Also, what is the cause of hot flushes of the face?

Answer: Nervousness can cause a cessation of menstruation. Hot flushes to the face in a woman past 40 years of age may be due to the menopause.

Numbers Racketeer Faces Prison Term

NEW YORK, May 18—(AP)—Numbers Racketeer Louis Weber was convicted last night of lying to the U. S. Senate crime probe committee about his relations with James J. Moran, pal of former Mayor William O'Dwyer.

Weber, 51-year-old native of Puerto Rico, will be sentenced on the perjury conviction in federal court tomorrow.

He can get up to five years in prison and a $2,000 fine--the maximum imposed on Moran on the same charge.

The two perjury trials were the first prosecutions growing out of the Senate committee's sensational televised hearings here. The cases hinged on the number of times Weber visited Moran at his office when Moran was first deputy fire commissioner from 1946 to 1950.

Wage Stabilization Probe Now Wanted

WASHINGTON, May 18—(AP)

An investigation of the Wage Stabilization Board's "far reaching controls" over wages and labor disputes was ordered today by Chairman Barden (D-NC) of the House labor committee.

Barden named a subcommittee headed by Rep. Lucas (D-Tex.) to study the whole wage stabilization program. His action came as other House and Senate groups worked on proposals to extend the defense production act beyond June 30.

That law provides the authority for wage and price controls.

"I feel Congress is entitled to be better informed on just what's going on," Barden said, in announcing the inquiry.

Sunday School Lesson

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most serious problems the American forces in Korea had to contend with, after their first sweep across the land, was the nests of guerillas that concealed themselves in the mountain passes, and rose to fight again after the invaders had gone on. Under the impact of the Chinese Reds' attacks, when the Americans were being driven back, these guerillas became formidable foes.

Need Completed Reforms

Every godly king of Judah came to the discovery sooner or later that he had to contend with nests of paganism which appeared in the life of the nation after every reform.

The "high places" (pagan shrines) constituted a menace to the peace and safety of the realm as long as they were tolerated. It is so also in modern political life.

Every city that tolerates vice in any form soon discovers that the vicious interests are determined to rule the town. All efforts to license prostitution, gambling, or other forms of evil have proven disastrous. The tentacles of paganism reach out and up to the highest government of the state to corrupt it for evil's own purposes.

Personal Problem, Too

Any person undertaking to clean up his own life makes the discovery that this principle works on the individual level as well. The man who decides to have done with all things wrong, except "one little sin," soon discovers that little sins, like misery, desire company and are soon producing a troublesome brood.

The only way any man can bring about a reform inside his own life is by setting out to make that reform complete. Small infidelities, moderate drunkenness, white lies, slightly immoral practices in business—all these things constitute guerilla nests which will some day prove our undoing.

Prophet in Politics

It is not uncommon to hear someone demanding that the preacher shall keep out of politics, and preach the pure gospel. But in mingling in the affairs of his day and undertaking to help fashion the opinion of his generation the preacher is in line with a fine and honorable tradition. All the Old Testament prophets did that.

Isaiah never preached a sermon on the subject of personal salvation. All his preaching was in terms of national life. If he had kept out of politics he would never have been heard of in the Old Testament. As a matter of fact, one of his bitterest enemies was the professionally prophetic party which insisted that he leave the government alone and stick to the ritual of the Temple and the traditions of the fathers.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 20: "The Southern Kingdom," II Kings 18-20; II Chronicles 29-30; Isaiah 31.

Of course Isaiah did not take to the hustings to try to elect his party's candidate to office, but he did take to the rural towns and crossroads in a mighty effort to rouse the people to resist one of the fixed policies of the government. He was no ward heeler, but a statesman with a fixed political philosophy for his nation.

Relied on Principles

The pulpits of America, and the editorial columns as well, might very profitably raise up again the cry of Isaiah, "Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help." The great prophet knew that an appeal to Egypt was only another appeal to impotence because in Egypt there was no high moral principle.

Isaiah had a firm confidence that there was a power in the right which was superior to any that the alliance of a God of righteousness was not to be jeopardized by an alliance with an evil thing such as Egypt was.

Rural Life Sunday Service Planned

Rural Life Sunday is to be observed jointly by the Forest Shade (New Martinsburg) and Good Hope Granges next Sunday with a mid-day basket dinner and afternoon program in the Township House at Good Hope.

An announcement by a spokesman for the committee on arrangements said plans call for the people of the two communities to attend the churches of their choice in the morning and then gather for the basket dinner at 1 P. M.

Rev. Eugene Frazer, pastor of the Good Hope church, is to deliver the afternoon sermon. He has not announced his subject.

The spokesman for the Granges emphasized that "everyone is welcome" and that membership in the Grange is not a requirement.

Election Boards
Called for Meeting

The Fayette County Board of Elections and clerk have been notified of a state-wide meeting of board of election members and clerks, to be held in Cleveland, Friday and Saturday, July 13 and 14.

Secretary of State, Ted W. Brown, has called the meeting to make a study of the new election laws which will have been enacted by the General Assembly and to give the election officials an opportunity to visit and study the tremendous operation of the election machinery in Cuyahoga County.

A busy session is being scheduled to study any new legislation which may have been enacted, affecting Ohio's elections. In addition a number of new counties have been added to the list of those having registration. The meeting and the visit to the Cuyahoga County Board of Elections will afford an opportunity for officials in these counties to study that operation.

"Time out" will be taken Friday evening to attend the night baseball game between the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees. An outing on Lake Erie is planned for the election officials and their families following the Saturday session.

You are hereby notified that on the 25th day of April, 1951, the Council of the Village of Bloomingburg duly passed the following resolution:

Workmen Ready Pool for Opening

PUMPING POOL DRY OF WATER—Marcus Evans uses sump pump to pump water before workers from Sever-Williams Co. clean and paint inside of pool. (Record-Herald photo)

With warm weather beckoning, residents of the city have turned their attention to the Washington Park Swimming Pool, where preparations started Thursday for the opening of the pool on May 30.

'Blood for Barbara' Is College Project

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., May 18—(P)—The Marshall College campus is rallying behind a "Blood for Barbara" banner—blood for a Charleston, W. Va., codd in a New York (Memorial) Hospital with an intestinal ailment.

Barbara Anderson, reported in serious condition, already has received 77 pints of blood in transmen from the Sever-Williams Co. started work Thursday cleaning out the winter's dirt from the pool.

They were to thoroughly scrub the inside of the pool and wire brush the "ocean blue" paint on its sides in preparation for a new coat of paint.

A committee of blood recruiting workers begin seeking donor pledges from students today. The drive is being sponsored by the stricken girl's sorority, Alpha Xi Delta. A special blood recruiting day has been set for May 25.

Under a special agreement with the Red Cross, the blood will go directly to the New York hospital.

stand were slated for a clean-up too.

The spokesman said it was a little late to plant grass in the ground between the lounging area and the fence along Oakland Avenue.

Pool patrons will find their parking problems considerably eased this year following the construction of a giant parking area near the pool. Crushed stone and gravel were used for the lot.

To keep cars from going into the rear part of the park, the park board had stakes driven in the ground along one side of the parking lot.

Meantime plans were going ahead to open up the pool to patrons May 30, weather permitting. There have been no plans made for an opening ceremony, however.

Reds Are Irate Over Free Radio

Attitude Evidence That It Hits Mark

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
MUNICH, Germany, May 18—(P)—Radio free Europe is putting the bite on the Kremlin and the Reds are furious.

They've paid the anti-Communist transmitter here its biggest compliment: Trying to satirize its work.

This is a sure sign, says Radio Free Europe men, that their programs are having an effect behind the Iron Curtain.

Radio Free Europe inaugurated its big medium-wave sender here in May. Short wave versions have been hammering away at the Communists ever since June 1950.

These short wave programs have the Soviets burned up.

Staff men at the stations, made possible by contributions from countless Americans, say that their "correspondents" in Iron Curtain countries testify to the effectiveness of the short wave programs.

Reports Reliable

Escapees who filter out to the west say people in Russian-dominated countries are listening to the anti-Communist broadcasts. Some who live in the Soviet satellite bloc smuggle out letters paying tribute to Radio Free Europe.

One of the newest signs was a savage attack made on it by the Communist radio in East Germany which broadcast that all who worked for the station would be executed as war criminals when Allied west Germany is "liberated" by the east.

Radio Moscow paid the supreme

"SAMSON AND DELILAH," the picture booked to open Sunday at the State Theater, turns back time to ancient history. In the above scene from the film, Hedy Lamar, as Delilah, having drugged Samson, played by Victor Mature, prepares to cut off his hair. It is a Paramount picture done in Technicolor.

compliment. It instructed some of its satellites to try to ridicule Radio Free Europe. Radio Bucharest aped an RFE program in an effort to counteract its influence. Other Communist stations stir the air in the east in counter broadcasts.

One short wave program from RFE made the Communists hopping mad when it presented documented proof that blood collected for a Hungarian blood bank actually was going to Russia. In another it disclosed Russian plans to spread the Stakhanovite speed-up process to satellite countries which don't yet have it.

Big New Station

All this was primarily responsible for the big new station and headquarters here. The Americans who donated to the fund of the National Committee for Free Eu-

Czech-Style Justice Bared in Document

VIENNA —(P)—The Austrian Socialist party recently published a document it claimed proved how East Europe's Communist governments send anti-Communists to labor camps without trial.

The document, which the Socialists said had fallen into their hands, was alleged to be a letter delivered to a certain Rudolf Vlk, living on Stalin street, in Brno, Czechoslovakia.

The quoted letter said in part: "District Commission Number 13 in Brno for the Transfer of Persons into Corrective Labor Camps, which was established in compliance with paragraph three of Law 247 of October, 1948, informs you of your enrollment into a corrective labor camp, after investigation and on the basis of the above law, for two years because you are a politically untrustworthy person and constitute a threat to the security of the Peoples Democratic regime.

"You may appeal against this decision to the Ministry of the Interior within 15 days. According to paragraph 5 of the above law such an appeal does not postpone the term of enrollment.

Signed:
Josef Horak, Chairman."

Fifth in a Row Is Won by Reds

Braves Beaten To Sweep Series

CINCINNATI, May 18 —(AP)—For three straight days the Boston Braves put up the best they had in pitching. And they lost three games to Cincinnati.

By sweeping the series, Cincinnati ran its streak to five straight and now is tied with St. Louis for fifth place, just 1½ games out of the top spot.

Yesterday Willard Ramsdell wavered badly toward the end and had to be given a helping hand by Harry Perkowski and Frank Smith, but the Reds had given their pitching staff a 6-0 lead which saw them safely through.

Johnny Wyrostek, currently the hottest clutch hitter in the local aggregation, whammed a three-run double to left centerfield in the third after Lloyd Merriam and Virgil Stalleck singled and Connie Ryan was passed purposefully.

RYAN TIED into a Warren Spahn pitch in the fifth that hit the leftfield foul-line pole and rebounded onto the playing field for a three-run homer.

The Braves started making things uncomfortable for Ramsdell in the seventh. Willard Marshall opened with a double and came home when Joe Adeock took a header going for Roy Hartsfield's single against the leftfield fence.

Ramsdell failed to survive the eighth. The Braves got back into the game by scoring four runs on a pass and three hits, including Sid Borden's three-run homer to leftfield just inside the foul line pole.

Tonight Is Night for Decision On State Softball Tourney; State Commissioner Coming

Tonight (Friday) is the night. . . . The turnout at Wilson Field for the softball season's opener and the spirit and sportsmanship shown then and there will go a long way toward determining whether the state softball tournament will be held in Washington C. H. or somewhere else next August.

Max Lawrence, the district commissioner, has put in a bid for the tournament. He said that from now on it's up to the folks.

The opener itself, he and others

Yankees Tough On Home Field

NEW YORK, May 18 —(AP)—Attention radio quiz show fans. Here's the jackpot question. When did the New York Yankees last lose a ball game at Yankee Stadium?

No coaching, please. No peeking in the old sporting news. The answer is Sept. 26, 1950. A world series and 10 straight 1951 victories have passed and the end is not in sight. Talk about Boston's friendly Fenway. The Yankees home in the Bronx has that stopped six ways.

One day the Yanks bomb you to death. Next day they finesse you with skillful pitching and brilliant defense. It just is discouraging for the tourists.

You won't see many better-pitched games than Early Wynn threw at the Yanks yesterday. Still he lost 1-0, as his Cleveland Tribe left 13 on the bases.

er leaders of the sport here believe, should provide just what the fans have been waiting for. It will bring together the Rocking Chair Inn team of the budding Recreation League and a team from Springfield. It is to start at 8 P. M.

There will be no preliminary —just the one main event.

Nick Barrack, the state softball commissioner, has said he would come here from Columbus to look the situation over with a view to picking the site for the state tourney.

Also to get consideration for the decision will be the city's restaurant and hotel accommodations, the seating capacity (including expansion possibilities) and general hospitality.

Some sort of curtain raising ceremonies and a bit of fanfare are being worked up, but the details had not been completed by mid-day.

Eight Horses Seem Likely In Preakness

BALTIMORE, May 18 —(AP)—The 75th Preakness tomorrow at Pimlico has settled down to another elimination contest in the race to decide the best 3-year-old colt of 1951.

The names of eight horses of seven owners are expected to be in the entry box when it closes today. The best of them are expected sooner or later to have it out with the cream of the Kentucky Derby finishers for the year's laurels. None of the first five Derby colts was eligible for this diamond jubilee Preakness.

Five of the eight possible starters went in the Derby, Greentree Stable's Hall of Fame fared best, ninth.

However, indicating how two weeks can make a possible difference Jockey Ted Atkinson has taken himself off Hall of Fame. He will ride the other Greentree entry, Big Stretch, 18th finisher in the Derby. Headley Woodhouse will take over Hall of Fame's reins.

The anticipated crowd of 35,000 is expected to bet heavily on Big Stretch and three other colts, two of which skipped the Derby.

Features at the Theaters

Times haven't changed much in the past 3,000 years. Cecil B. DeMille producer of "Sampson and Delilah," which opens here on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State Theatre, has discovered. DeMille, who spent almost 15 years researching the pre-Christian era to get the "feel" of his new picture, has bobbed up with the intelligence that people in 1200 B. C. had two familiar beefs: taxes and the high cost of living! The people of the village of Dan, not far from present-day Gaza had 95 percent of their crops taken away from them, even before they had a chance to convert them into money, DeMille discovered.

FAYETTE THEATRE

A technicolor spectacle of a South Sea island adventure will be told in the technicolor production, "Bird of Paradise," which will be shown at the Fayette Theatre on Sunday and Monday. Starring are Louis Jourdan, Debra Paget and Jeff Chandler. The movie was photographed amidst the coral, cocoanuts, volcanoes and orchids of the Hawaiian islands.

A typical George Raft thriller, "Lucky Nick Cain," will be shown at the Fayette on Tuesday and Wednesday. Raft plays the part of an American tourist who becomes a murder suspect. Much of the movie was actually filmed on location in Italy. Coleen Gray is the romantic interest.

STATE THEATRE

"Sampson and Delilah," Cecil B. DeMille's technicolor masterpiece, will come to the State Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The movie stars Victor Mature and Hedy Lamarr. The picture was 14 years in planning, preparation and plain hard work. A supporting cast of thousands is in it.

On Wednesday and Thursday Joe E. Brown in "Beware of Spooks" and Abbott and Costello in "Noose Hangs High" are to be the features.

PALACE THEATRE

With Johnny Sheffield playing the leading role, "The Lion Hunters," story of a jungle boy, will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Sunday and Monday along with the Western, "Nevada Badmen." The jungle shows how Sheffield combats those who come into the jungles to trap animals and cart them off for a life in the zoo cages.

Morrison Leading California Open

DEL MAR, Calif., May 18—(AP)—An overloaded field swings into the second round of the $4,000 California open golf tournament today with Fred Morrison of Riverside holding a one stroke lead.

The tournament is a starter's headache, with 255 performers entered. So cumbersome is the field, in fact, that darkness fell yesterday before nearly 20 golfers could finish the first round.

Morrison, the only three time winner of the California crown, clipped three strokes off par yesterday on the Rancho Santa Fe Country Club links with a 34-35--69.

Birth after Accident

LIMA, May 18—(AP)—A Logan County woman gave birth to a baby after an automobile accident yesterday, but she died 67 minutes later. Mrs. Rita Siebenack, 28, of Route 1, Lakeview, was on her way to the hospital when the accident happened. Ray Nye, 67, of Phoenix, Ariz., also was killed in the two-car crash 10 miles southeast of Lima.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
SHE RESUMED the restless pacing. "I'm sure I would never have done anything. It was just one of those wild ideas—a woman scorned and that sort of thing. I was getting over it, really, I was."

McGann had pinched out the Arabian cigarette. He palmed it and ut one of his own. "I was looking over some old clippings the other night," he said. "There was a story about your hunting trip to Africa. It said you were a wonderful shot."

To his surprise, she gave a short laugh. "You're wasting your time. Mr. McGann. As a matter of fact, I missed an elephant at 30 yards."

The detective grinned and stood up. "I know. Now would you show me your observation tower?"

The white figure moved ahead of him. Kathleen Rogers had wide shoulders and a splendid carriage. "No, don't turn on the light," McGann said. "I want to see outside, too."

He moved warily through the gloom of the bedroom, the windows of which opened directly onto the court across from the Tompkins' study. She pulled the cord opening the venetian blinds and they stood close together at the window.

Thin rain was still slanting down. You could see it if you looked at the naked electric bulb above the service entrance of the next apartment.

As his eyes became accustomed to the darkness, McGann could make out the iron tracery of the fire escape opposite and the dark window of the study which had been replaced since Spanish's spectacular exit. "Could I borrow your opera glasses?" he asked.

She hesitated. "I guess it's no use pretending I don't have any, is it?"

"Not really," McGann said. She opened the nearest drawer of the vanity and handed him a pair. They were small but well made, and powerful, he soon discovered. He followed the spidery fire-escape to the top, skipped across the dark windows, and paused to watch a girl who was brushing her hair in the apartment.

When she finished brushing, she walked over and pulled the shade down.

"Sabotage," McGann said. "What's that?"

"The investigation is up against a drawn shade—I mean a stone wall. How long has Tompkins' place been like this?"

"There hasn't been a soul over there since early yesterday."

McGann lowered the glasses and turned to face her in the gloom. "What really happened over there Friday night? I looked out once and saw a light go out. I'm quite sure it was in this apartment."

"I was creaming my face in the bathroom," she said, "when I heard a sharp noise like a shot or a firecracker from across the court. I walked in here where it was dark and looked over."

"Fine," McGann said. "What did you see?"

"Well, like I say—nothing really. The window of Ronnie's study was open and the shade was up. I could see a light in the room and the firelight but that was all."

"Wait a minute," McGann said. "You must have seen more than that. Did you come right in here the instant you heard the noise or did you wait for a while and then decide to look?"

"I came in right away if I'm going to admit I'm a snoop. I might as well be a good one."

McGann moved briskly to the lighted room. He swung around and stepped back to the bedroom windows. "That only takes about two seconds, elapsed time," he mused aloud. "It would hardly give a person time to get the study window open, let alone go up or down the fire escape. You're absolutely certain you came right in and looked?"

"Face full of cream and all." McGann shook his head as if to clear it. He seemed finally to accept it. "Since there wasn't time to raise the window and get away from it between the sound of the shot and when you looked out, it must have been open before the shot."

"I suppose so."

"How was the sound, quite clear? I think you said sharp?"

"Very distinct. My own window was down a few inches from the top."

"All right. So you looked out and things were as you described. Then what?"

"I watched for a few minutes and heard a crash over there."

"That was me playing Superman with the door."

"I realized that this room was half-lighted and someone might see me, so I went back and switched off the bathroom light and came over again to watch."

"That was the light I saw go out."

"You were looking out the window when I returned. I stayed here for hours, absolutely petrified. I heard the sirens and saw police come in." She gestured toward a small ivory cabinet on the night-table. "Somehow I knew what had happened. When it came over the radio it was no great surprise."

Lost in thought, both stared at the building across the court. Both seemed to see it at the same instant. A match flared up in the dark of the Tompkins' study. The tiny tongue of yellow flame moved slowly across the room, then hovered uncertainly for a moment.

breath was warm on his cheek. "What is it?" she whispered. A second match flared in Tompkins' study, and moved steadily toward the art gallery door and out of sight.

"That's funny," McGann said. "The servants are gone and even if they came back the electricity's still on. Holton told me I'm going over."

Kathleen Rogers' name sought his and pressed. "For heaven's sake, be careful, she pleaded. "If there should be any more..."

"Can I get through the easement to the back? Then I wouldn't have to go around the block."

"Yes, of course. That is, I think so. The elevator runs to the basement. There should be a rear door."

McGann heaved the chain slide back into place as the automatic elevator nummed to a stop. He stepped in, punched B and held his finger on it. It let him out in a dim and musty corridor. He found a narrow n' leading back, opened a door and went up several steps to the courtyard between the buildings.

He glanced back and up and thought he could see the white gown motionless behind the open blind. His gaze darted to the dark study window and then he ran quickly across to the service entrance, through which he and Frazier Farwell once had made their way to the street. Was that only Friday night? It seemed much longer ago. The rain on his hair and face reminded him that he had left his hat on the radiator in Kathleen Rogers' apartment.

He plunged through the narrow hall of the building and found himself beside the brownstone steps leading up to the Tompkins' home. The front was as dark as the rear. A car went by, heading toward the park, its tires whining in the slick, and across the street a couple hurried along, their heads down against the drizzle.

Noislessly, McGann crept up the brownstone steps. His hand tried the knob on the front door. It was locked. Probing fingers found the key which Holton had given him that morning in a vest pocket. He slid it soundlessly into the lock. The door melted beneath his touch.

In the foyer, he stopped, listening. To his right, he knew now, was Tompkins' art gallery of ex-wives. One door was on this hall. It must be closed because he could see nothing but there came to his nostrils the unmistakable odor of newly-struck matches. Whoever was there was afraid to turn on the lights.

Just to the left inside that door, he remembered a wall switch. He had already started toward when he heard a ripping, tearing sound within. McGann slid out of his raincoat and let it drop to the floor. He thought, I hope I live to regret this, and swung open the art gallery door, his free hand groping for the switch.

WHS Seniors Hold Breakfast

Many Activities Held During Day

Another day of honor for the senior class of Washington C. H. High School was ushered in with the traditional Senior Breakfast Friday morning at 7:30 o'clock in the high school cafeteria.

Over 90 members of the class of '51 gathered in the cafeteria for the breakfast, which started the day of activities.

Baked ham with pineapple slice, breakfast rolls, fruit juice and either coffee or hot chocolate was served to the members.

Beside each plate was a miniature diploma with "Class of 1951" written on the outside and "Success to the graduate of '51" on the inside.

Mrs. Olive Woodard, home economics teacher, was in charge of the breakfast. She was assisted by members of the home economics classes.

They were: Cloetta Adams, Eula Cox, Harriett Cunningham, Carolyn Merritt, Jacquie Stone, Peggy Williams and Martha Wyatt.

The decorations committee headed by Rosella Dowden, included: Margaret Lemons, Barbara Butler, Barbara Thompson, Marilyn Thomas and Dorothy Hixon.

Following the breakfast, members took part in the class elections.

Officers for the sophomores, junior and senior classes were elected during the morning.

At 9:30 o'clock the seniors filed into the auditorium to attend the Senior Chapel.

Friday morning, seniors at Washington C. H. High School turned their talents loose in the high school auditorium before the student body when the Senior Assembly was held.

They presented a variety show, which included practically all the varied talent in the class.

All the members of the senior class made up a chorus which sang "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You", "Alma Mater" and "Old Seniors Never Die." They were accompanied by Helen Louise Hynes.

The seniors presented some humorous skits, musical numbers, a small dance band and other variety numbers.

Directing the seniors during the show were Jean Perrill, Kay Morter and Sharon Rettig.

'Flying Boxcars' Roar Over City

A large number of people probably strained their necks Thursday shortly after noon when the buzz of a number of airplane engines attracted their eyes to the sky.

What they saw looked like nine flying freight cars... and that is just about what they were.

The large bodied two-engine twin tailed aircraft are Air Force cargo planes used to haul men and equipment from one place to another and are usually known as "flying boxcars".

The Air Force calls them C-82 Packets, according to Don Mack, supervisor of the civil defense observation post here.

The craft is capable of hauling 42 fully equipped paratroopers at a top speed of 238 miles per hour, or a total of approximately 18,000 pounds of equipment, Mack said.

Republicans Urged To Send in Reservations

Republicans in Fayette County got a reminder from the committee planning a banquet here May 23, at which Charles Taft, Cincinnati attorney and candidate for governor, will speak, that they should send in or call in their reservations to either Tom Mark or Brooks G. Trueblood. The banquet will be held at the Washington Country Club and will be open to all Republicans in the county.

Three-State Flood

(Continued from Page One) Canton Reservoir engineers warned residents to prepare for high flood waters—perhaps the greatest in history—from the Washita River. The lowlands at Fort Cobb, Anadarko and Chickasha were in the most danger.

The floods have taken at least two lives in Oklahoma. David Raimor, 14, Clinton, Okla., and Gale Simpkins, 18, Elk City, Okla., drowned. Missing is Tommy Basket of Clinton. He and David disappeared after leaving a stalled school bus to seek aid for the other occupants.

Other flood deaths included Gene Lusk, 22, a railroad workman who fell from a bridge and drowned at Syracuse, Kas., and Marion Thomas, Canadian, Tex., asphyxiated while working on a flood-damaged gas line.

The hardest hit city in Texas was Plainview in the northwest part of the state. Approximately 40 persons have been evacuated there.

Floodwaters two-foot deep spread through the town of 10,000. Only one road was open south of Plainview and the highway patrol was guiding and towing vehicles through.

The torrential rains that sent the creeks and rivers out of their banks had eased off to a certain extent in all three states. But there were still plenty of thunderstorms and showers.

Downpours ranging up to foot have fallen.

Armco Honors Men

(Continued from Page One) Together, the miners gave 410 inches of their skin—almost three square feet—that their neighbor's son might have a chance to live and walk again.

A school teacher at Dry Creek named Lawson Barrett sat down and wrote a letter to the Armco Steel Corporation at Middletown, Ohio. Ultimately, his letter was laid on the president's desk of the big Armco Steel Company. Came back the answer from President W. W. Sebald:

"You may be sure that such an unselfish act will not go unnoticed. It makes us feel very proud to have two such courageous men in our Montcoal organization."

Today, President Sebald and the Armco Steel Company made good his promise. Public ceremonies were planned in the Montcoal Community Hall to honor Loftis and August.

Leo F. Reinartz, vice president of Armco in charge of coal mining operations, was on hand to stuff fistfuls of currency into the hands of its unselfish employees. The money is to tide them over their period of lost work.

Red Cross Clean Up Drive Set

Leaders Organize To Bolster Fund

A clean-up drive aimed at bolstering the Red Cross fund drive has been planned by leaders here.

It will get underway next Monday, principally in the downtown district of Washington C. H., according to Ferrell Smith, fund drive chairman.

During the regular Red Cross campaign workers here raised about $6,900. The goal was in excess of $11,000.

Helping out in the clean-up drive will be Richard Patton, Tom Mark and Don Mack.

Don Mack, in volunteering, said he wanted to help the Red Cross since he felt that it had saved his life when he was a prisoner of war in Europe during World War II.

Mack said the Red Cross fed him during his period of confinement and was always on hand with their donuts and coffee when he was at the front before his capture.

A final bid will be made beginning next week to obtain all contributions not yet picked up. Leaders here are confident that there still remains some outstanding funds, which are needed especially for the Red Cross work in Korea.

William Humphries To Leave City Soon

William W. Humphries, for the past nine years manager of the Murphy Store here, will leave soon for New Philadelphia, where he will open a Dairy Queen Store at 415 High Avenue.

The new store is now being built, and will be completed so that it can be opened by Decoration Day, Humphries said.

Humphries leaves Sunday to look after the new business. His successor here has not been announced.

The Humphries family will not move to New Philadelphia until after school closes.

Humphries has the franchise for all of Tuscarawas County, and probably will open other Dairy Queen stores in that county.

During his stay here Humphries has expanded the Murphy business to two adjacent rooms, and has been one of the company's most energetic managers.

Earlier this week the employees of the store presented Humphries with a desk and chair set as a mark of the esteem in which he is held by the employees.

Gasoline Tax Funds Total $18,204 Here

The sum of $18,204 in gasoline excise tax funds came into Fayette County Thursday and Friday.

Of this amount, $10,000 was for Fayette County, $400 for each of the 10 townships in the county and $4,204 for Washington C. H.

The funds will all be used for maintenance and repair work of highways, roads and streets.

Distribution to cities was based on $1 for each motor vehicle registered in 1949.

The funds coming to Fayette County are a part of a total distribution of $3,426,619 made over the state at large.

The money is badly needed by the county, city and townships to help repair winter damage to the roads.

The amount will do much toward repair work of several streets in Washington C. H., which suffered heavily during the winter.
